👩‍🏫 Staff Guide · US History · Unit 4 Industry & the Progressives (Level 3)

Level 3 = resource-room students who can work close to the gen ed lesson. No slide decks: students follow Ms. Stockmar's lesson and slides with Level 3 readings, guided notes and a quick check.

1. How the pieces line up

Gen ed lesson	Level 3 piece
Her readings and worksheets	Level 3 reading (5 short paragraphs) + check questions
Class notes	Level 3 guided notes + key
Unit quiz / test	Level 3 quick check + key
Review (Kahoot / Jeopardy)	1 Level 3 game on the class site: 10 questions + a matching round

2. Supports built in

- 🔊 Read aloud on the reading and notes pages (tap the button)
- Key terms listed at the top of the notes
- Short-answer lines sized for 1-2 sentences

3. What to grade

- Notes and reading checks: same points as her worksheets for that lesson
- Quick check: score, then scale to her test points
- Modified grading only as the IEP allows. Check with the case manager.

4. Who to ask

- Mr. Driver (SLE): changes and IEP questions.
- Facts we could not confirm say “check with Ms. Stockmar”.

🚧 Under construction (check with Ms. Stockmar)

- Unit placement: From her earlier-year calendars (Immigration & Progressives, 2022). Check whether she teaches it this year.
- The Jungle excerpt: If she reads the excerpt aloud, our version is a summary only.

💗 Sensitive topic note

The Triangle Fire (146 deaths, workers jumping) and The Jungle contain upsetting details. We give numbers and outcomes only, with no photos of the fire or bodies. Some Nast cartoons show the Irish and Chinese in caricature; we use the Tweed cartoon only and describe others.

Muckrakers and Reformers

After the Civil War, new inventions such as Edison's light bulb (1879) and Bell's telephone (1876) helped American industry grow faster than ever. Business leaders like Andrew Carnegie (steel) and John D. Rockefeller (oil) built giant companies. Critics called them “robber barons” because they crushed competitors and paid workers little; supporters called them “captains of industry” because they built jobs and gave money to libraries and schools.

Cities grew too, and so did corruption. In New York, William “Boss” Tweed and the Tammany Hall political machine stole millions of dollars from the city. Cartoonist Thomas Nast drew Tweed as a greedy thief. Tweed complained that his voters could not read, but they could understand “them damned pictures.” Tweed was convicted in 1873.

Around 1900, reformers called Progressives believed the government should fix the problems of industrial life. Journalists known as muckrakers exposed these problems. Ida Tarbell revealed Standard Oil's unfair practices. Upton Sinclair's novel “The Jungle” (1906) described filthy, dangerous meatpacking plants. Within months, Congress passed the Meat Inspection Act and the Pure Food and Drug Act, which also forced makers of “medicines” to label ingredients such as alcohol and opium.

Child labor was another target. In 1900 nearly 2 million children worked in mills, mines and factories, often for 10 to 12 hours a day. Photographer Lewis Hine traveled the country taking pictures of “breaker boys” in coal mines and young girls at spinning machines. His photographs helped persuade states to pass child labor and school attendance laws.

On March 25, 1911, a fire broke out at the Triangle Shirtwaist Factory in New York. Exit doors had been locked, and 146 workers, mostly young immigrant women, died. The tragedy led New York to pass dozens of fire safety and labor laws. Frances Perkins, who witnessed the fire, later became the first woman in a president's cabinet. Meanwhile Jane Addams's Hull House in Chicago (1889) offered classes, child care and help to immigrant families.
